

I wish to vote NO in regard to the possibility of cellular telephone use in-flight on commercial aircraft by passengers. Given the common and widespread abuse of goodwill by cell phone users generally, the additional sensory overload for those next to a user would certainly prove too much.